

DELIVERING BETTER.

West Coasters place great value on staying true to their word and Greymouth-based freight company Grey Valley Couriers is no exception. Owners James and Donna Gillman have built their reputation by delivering on their promises and now rely on FUSO to ensure they continue to do so

“Our word is our bond,” says James. “If we say we’ll do it; we will do everything in our power to get it done. It’s just how it is down here.”

Those values have remained true of Grey Valley Couriers as it’s grown into the largest courier fleet servicing the West Coast. James and Donna found similar values at Keith Andrews Trucks.

“The guys at FUSO and Tradesman Motorbodies just make it so easy for us and I can’t fault the trucks,” says James. “They arrive built to spec and ready to go. Our drivers like them too. It’s a win-win.”

James and Donna have bought two 616 Canters and three Fighters (1 x FK1025 and 2 x FK1228s) in the past two years and say the investment has paid dividends in the reduction of repair costs and off-the-road time, and in driver comfort and safety.

“They’re just good to work out of; easy to access, the dash is well laid out, they have plenty of power and they are really comfortable to drive long distances.”
